Do letters ever get through the chain of command without at least some editing? That's a rhetorical question. At least you can sign your own letters. That must help speed things up a little!

Hey Paul! Yes the field days were crazy, but productive! We had 10 corps staff out there and I think 6 WRA staff. They were ok with the changes in the field and with taking out or pulling back what we asked them too. They seemed to be ok with the Elizabeth Lake wetland situation (i.e. giving them credits if the parameters come back) but I'm not sure what the official response will be. They seem to still be pressing forward!

'OW' is open water and 'A' is for alluvial...sorry about that; I didn't think to put a legend!

The final version of the letter isn't exactly the same as my original draft...Aaron and Dan had some comments, but I am proud of myself as this project is massive! So thank you for the feedback :-)

Hi Bri,

Good letter! Looks like it was a productive JD field trip. Just curious how they reacted to the modifications. I assume they are still pressing forward. Also, what do "OW" and "A" stand for in the table?

Paul
